Fall Protection Awareness Seminar Training

As per the U.S. Department of Labor Occupational Safety & Health Administration, falls are consistently the leading cause of worker fatalities for those involved in the U.S. construction industry. Each year, on average, between 150 and 200 workers are killed and more than 100,000 are injured as a result of falls at construction sites.

OSHA's 29 Code of Federal Regulations, Subpart M, Fall Protection, includes most construction workers except those inspecting, investigating, or assessing workplace conditions prior to the actual start of work or after all work had been completed. These standards aim to standardize the development of systems and procedures designed to prevent employees from falling off, onto, or through working levels and to protect employees from being struck by falling objects. The regulations apply to any person who is exposed to fall hazards while working six feet or more above working levels.

Fall Protection equipment users must have a thorough understanding on the use, care and maintenance of the systems. Fall protection is a combination of methods and devices used to protect workers from falling off, onto or through working levels. Fall protection also includes methods and devices that protect workers from being struck by falling objects.
